Use of Information:

Your information is used to personalize your experience, improve our website, provide and improve customer service, process transactions, send periodic emails, verify your identity, detect and prevent fraud, conduct analytics and research, target advertisements, and comply with legal and business obligations.

Our business is both domestic and international, so your information may be stored and processed in other countries that may not have the same data protection laws as the country you provided the information. We take all reasonable steps to implement a variety of security measures to maintain the safety of your personal information. We maintain administrative, technical, and physical controls which protect against loss or theft and against unauthorized access. Security measures include secure servers, firewalls, data encryption, and limitation to information access.
